wintertide festival

Welcome

Wintertide is a celebration of the Headland and its community. We have developed a three-day programme of events, activities and entertainment to celebrate this proud area and to welcome visitors from far and wide.

Wintertide has been developed by volunteers and the programme aims to offer something for every type of visitor. Our celebration starts with a 100 strong lantern parade from the Heugh Battery Museum to the Town Square to mark the switch-on of the Christmas Tree and event illuminations.

Saturday and Sunday are full of family Activities including creative performance, craft workshops and a superb firework display.

The event also boasts an impressive live-music programme throughout the weekend with standout gigs on each day which should not be missed. The Festival site will be brought to life with some dramatic illumination of key buildings and the presence of a series of exciting Light Art pieces for you to explore and enjoy.

Wintertide Festival is grateful for the funding received from Tees Valley Community Foundation which has supported many of the programme elements and to THIRTEEN Group who have committed significant sponsorship support. Without this assistance the event would not be able to deliver such a diverse and ambitious experience for all visitors.

Peter Jackson
Chair, Headland Festivals Group.

A Six and Two Threes

Written by: Andy Berriman, Directed by: Andy Berriman
Produced by: Maria Caruana Galizia for Candle & Bell Limited

A Six and Two Threes follows Sean as he searches for his father Mick. When he hits a dead end, Sean is forced to rely on the help of loner Mackenzie. It isn't long before Sean regrets his decision as Mac leads him across the estate on a seemingly never-ending quest. When they finally reach their destination Sean is confronted with the truth about his father and finds he isn't all that dissimilar from Mac after all.

Hounds Of Whitby

(Stranger On The Shore series of films) Written By: Michael Smith
Directed By Maxy Bianco & Michael Smith

It's different by the sea. A bit strange even. Just as the coast lies at the ends of England geographically, it's also at the edges of our society and the margins of our culture - a threshold place where little England meets the wide mysterious world beyond.

Ferretting With Rambo

(Hunters of The Hinterlands series of films) Director; Maxy Bianco

We go ferretting with legendary local character RAMBO, "Always tuck your trousers into your socks when handling ferrets, if one gets up there it'll never let go of your of you!" he tells us as he stuffs his ferrets into a sack. We see the nets slung around holes as the ferrets are freed into a network of tunnels. This film is about the lads and this strange way of hunting thats been carried out in the North of England for 1000 years.

Hidden History

Director: Maxy bianco

We take a journey of memory and history around Hartlepool's historic headland.

No Place To Fall

Director: Jeffrey DeChausse

A lonely dive bar. A man with a heavy burden. Lucas is a soldier about to be deployed. His girlfriend is the waitress at this dive-bar. They have unresolved issues but she doesn't want to talk to him.

As they drink the night away the issue once again goes unresolved. Instead, they listen to the juke box and dance to a beautiful country song called NO PLACE TO FALL.
